Lifting our communities

Building community connections: opportunities for everyone

We talk about community a lot at Dalhousie, and with good reason.

The communities in which we live and work, and which we serve with purpose and distinction, are a big part of our success. As Dalhousie seeks to grow our impact and lift Nova Scotia to a stronger future, these community connections are going to become even more important.

That connection begins, first and foremost, within our Dalhousie community — with our students, with our colleagues, with our alumni. These are the bonds of collaboration and inclusion that shape everything we do. There is no achievement or milestone we reach that is not shared with others; nothing great at Dalhousie happens by oneself.

We're proud to celebrate our people with this year's calendar, including our incredible university photographers who have contributed some their favourite images from the past year. We hope you enjoy these snapshots of the people and places that make Dalhousie such a special place to work and study.

Working together, we're finding new and exciting ways to grow and strengthen our province's population, economy, and communities while striving to bring worlds together on the global stage. Whether it's health and health care, equity and diversity, population growth and standards of living, climate action and sustainable industries, we are proud to be part of the exciting future ahead for Nova Scotia.

Dalhousie University operates in the unceded territories of the Mi'kmaw, Wolastoqey, and Peskotomuhkati Peoples. These sovereign nations hold inherent rights as the original peoples of these lands, and we each carry collective obligations under the Peace and Friendship Treaties. Section 35 of the Constitution Act, 1982 recognizes and affirms Aboriginal and Treaty rights in Canada.

We recognize that African Nova Scotians are a distinct people whose histories, legacies and contributions have enriched that part of Mi'kma'ki known as Nova Scotia for over 400 years.

Did you know? In 2019, Dalhousie was one of the first universities in North America to replace its traditional university mace, which is used as the ceremonial object to open and close each convocation ceremony. The New Dawn Staff of Place and Belonging was created with contributions by artists from Mi'kmaq, African Nova Scotian and other communities to celebrate that Dalhousie is part of a larger geographic and cultural place of diversity and inclusion.

Did you know? A colourful mural designed by Mi'kmaw artist Tayla Fern Paul was painted onto the intersection of Larch and Jennings streets as part of a neighbourhood, HRM, and Dalhousie collaborative event. The project, led by residents of those streets, brought together neighbours, students and the Dal community to creatively promote community connections and mutual respect in the area.
